CONSTITUENCY NAMES IN SCOTLAND: 1950 ONWARDS

Constituency names in Scotland since 1950

This paper describes the names used for parliamentary constituencies in Scotland since 1950, for both the UK Parliament and the Scottish Parliament. These constituencies were a result of reviews conducted by Boundaries Scotland and Boundary Commission for Scotland.

The Boundary Commission for Scotland has conducted all reviews of UK Parliament constituencies and the First Review of Scottish Parliament boundaries. Responsibility for reviews of Scottish Parliament boundaries transferred to Boundaries Scotland in May 2017.

The UK Parliament constituencies in use from 1997-2005 were also used for the Scottish Parliament from its establishment in 1999 until 2011, with one alteration which divided Orkney and Shetland into two constituencies.

Scottish local government underwent substantial reorganisation in 1975, with counties and burghs being replaced by regions, districts and islands areas. In 1983, in our first report after that reorganisation, we noted that constituencies had generally carried the name of the county or burgh which they were in, or of a large town in the constituency. We decided at that time to adopt names based on the names of the new local government areas rather than the preceding counties.

When conducting recent reviews a naming guide has been shared with both Commissions. The broad guidelines include:

- to use an existing constituency name where there is a successor constituency that is recognisably similar.
- to prefer constituency names that are short rather than attempt to describe an area exhaustively.
- to ensure that names of UK Parliament constituencies in general differ from those of Scottish Parliament constituencies where an appropriate and distinct alternative is available. Relying on word order alone (e.g. "Glasgow East" and "East Glasgow") or conjunctions (e.g. "North and East Fife" and "North East Fife") is generally not a sufficient difference.
- not to place compass points at the beginning of a name in order to help make an alphabetically sorted list easier to use. We make an exception if a constituency is named after a council area or town which has a compass point at the start of its name (such as East Lothian).
- to typically avoid the same name for a constituency and a council area unless the two are coterminous.

Each constituency is designated as either a county constituency or a burgh constituency. This designation affects the allowable expenses by candidates during elections.

Appendix A lists the names and designations of UK Parliament constituencies in Scotland since 1950, and the periods during which they existed.

Appendix B lists the names and designations of Scottish Parliament constituencies since the creation of the Scottish Parliament in 1999, and the periods during which they existed.

Appendix C is an index of the place names used in constituencies.

Appendix A: UK Parliament constituency names

This Appendix lists the names and designations of UK Parliament constituencies in Scotland since 1950, and the periods during which they existed, shaded in grey. The extent of the constituency may have changed, even when a constituency name has remained unchanged.
